ABOUT DEEP ROOTS FARM

Sen Restaurant, a modern Japanese restaurant, has been a mainstay in Sag Harbor, New York since 1994. Zagat raves, “strike sushi gold at this trendy Sag Harbor phenomenon serving superb, slightly modernized Japanese dishes.” The warm and richly textured dining room is illuminated by amber lighting and framed with copper-capped wood beams. Small wood tables and hand-painted, rock encrusted walls complete the peaceful and dynamic decor. A horseshoe-shaped sushi bar sits at the center of the restaurant, while a small bar which seats three is surrounded by a lounge area in the rear of the restaurant. In the warmer months outdoor seating is available on the front patio, giving guests a prime view of downtown Sag Harbor. The restaurant is owned by Jesse and Tora Matsuoka.
