

Accessing Super due to severe financial hardship – Information sheet

If you are finding it hard to meet immediate family living expenses or have outstanding debts, then you may be eligible for early release of super due to financial hardship. Please be aware that the decision to release funds rests solely with Equity Trustees Superannuation Limited, an external Trustee appointed by Future Super. Accessing superannuation is highly regulated, and it often takes the Trustee more than a month to reach a determination after all documents are received. For the timeliest response to your claim, please read this information carefully and contact Future Super with any questions.

3. What kind of debt can be assessed?

- Any outstanding bills or money owed
- Outstanding amounts that are part of a repayment plan/scheme are considered an expense and not a debt

4. What happens if I don't have any overdue debts, but I am still unable to make ends meet?

Financial Hardship applications are generally assessed based on outstanding debts. The Trustee may consider your weekly expenses and your weekly income. You may have the option of providing evidence of immediate living expenses you need to cover such as:

- Bond/rent to get into stable housing
- Everyday expenses for a dependent e.g., school fees, costs of educational material such as books and uniforms
- Medical expenses
- Debt repayment amounts

5. What other options are available if I don't meet these requirements?

You may be eligible to apply for early release of super due to compassionate grounds if the following applies to you:

- You need to pay for a medical treatment for you or a dependent
- You need to make payments to prevent you from losing your house
- You need to modify your home or vehicle for you or a dependent due to disability
- You need to pay for expenses associated with funeral, death or burial

6. Other important information

- Up to $10,000 (less tax) can be released provided you can show evidence that you require this amount to relieve your severe financial hardship.
- If you have not yet reached your preservation age and retired, any lump sum withdrawal will be taxed at 22%
