About us

Positive Money is a leading international progressive research and campaigns organisation seeking to reform the economic system so that it serves people and the planet. In the EU office, our expertise lies within monetary policy from which we are building various policy interventions for a fairer, more democratic and sustainable economic system in the EU. We produce ground-breaking research and policy proposals, advocate for them with EU policymakers, and we engage in the public debate through regular media appearances and social media interventions.

We develop original research to support our advocacy work across three key areas: democratising money and banking, a green and fair European Central Bank, and financing the just transition in Europe. Discover more at positivemoney.org

Our organisation is engaged on a strong development path to fight against all structures of oppression. We are working towards systematically enhancing diversity, equity and inclusion in our practices and projects. We actively cultivate support, respect, open communication and collaboration with each other, and encourage creativity and innovation.

About our research

Our current research areas cover the development of a green monetary policy to support a just and sustainable transition (including supporting energy efficient home renovations and the deployment of renewable energy); the role of the European Central Bank, the European Investment Bank and national central banks in the EU in such transition; the coordination between monetary and fiscal policy to maintain price stability and increase green investments; the promotion of a universally accessible and safe digital euro for all citizens; the effects of monetary policy on income and wealth inequalities; the systemic risks of real estate holdings in the financial sectors, etc.

What we offer

We at Positive Money Europe are currently building a network of researchers interested in collaborating with our team on a project basis in the coming months and years, as external consultants based anywhere in the EU.

We are looking for experienced researchers holding at least a Masters degree and ideally a PhD in social sciences, (heterodox) economics, finance, banking, environmental studies, gender studies, global studies, etc. We are interested in your expertise, unique perspective, and/or creative take on our areas of research listed above, on current Eurozone economic policies and EU policy developments. Our working language is English.

As a non-profit organisation based in Belgium, we are happy to work with consultants based anywhere in the EU. Fee contracts are elaborated on a case by case basis, either with a total fee for a specific deliverable (like producing a research report), or with a daily rate for other projects. Travel costs and other expenses may be discussed, depending on the needs of the organisation for the concerned project.

How to apply

Please complete the application form here

You will be required to upload a CV as well as samples of your recent published work. We ask you to briefly outline what expertise and/or unique perspective you'd like to bring to our organisation, as well as what type of collaboration you are interested in.

Opportunities include: producing short or long research pieces, co-authoring policy reports, reviewing papers, participating in peer exchanges and multidisciplinary working groups - gaining insights on EU policy-making, social media and press work, etc.

We invite you to indicate your usual rates in our application form, as well as your availability (punctual or regular, general period(s) until end 2027 and/or hours per week/month).

We will review applications on a rolling basis and get back in touch with you as soon as possible, and no later than one month after you have submitted your application.
