Wrinkles are a good thing—after all, they’re an indication that you’re still around. But if you don’t exactly love them, the best wrinkle serum can help make them a little less noticeable, if that’s your thing. For some context: Starting in our twenties, our skin’s production of collagen and elastin—the proteins responsible for resilience and bounce—starts to slow down.

Best for the Neck: Colorescience Pep Up Collagen Boost Face & Neck Serum

Why it’s worth it: Wrinkles caused by laxity rather than muscle movement can be much harder to treat, but Colorescience Pep Up Collagen Boost Face & Neck Serum has those folds handled—even on the hard-to-treat neck area. “Containing a blend of peptides, antioxidants, plant extracts, and hyaluronic acid, this serum hydrates and soothes skin and supports collagen and elastin production to target signs of aging,” says Sean Alemi, MD, double board-certified facial plastic and reconstructive surgeon in New York City. We’re also a fan of the inclusion of beta glucan, a powerful hydrator that simultaneously calms skin.

Best for Dry Skin: Mara Plankton + PHA Flower Acid Algae Serum

Why it's worth it: Sensitive skin often can't tolerate a lot of the most effective anti-wrinkle actives, such as retinoids and even vitamin C; the ingredients in Mara Plankton + PHA Flower Acid Algae Serum were carefully chosen to keep skin comfortable while smoothing away the look of lines. "Unlike many exfoliants, this multi-acid serum can brighten and refresh skin without drying out the skin barrier," says Dr. Alemi. Those acids include gentle alpha-hydroxy lactic acid as well as gluconolactone, a polyhydroxy acid that mildly resurfaces as well as helps to hydrate the skin.

Best For Redness: Eminence Organic Skin Care Citrus & Kale Potent C+E Serum

Why it's worth it: Eminence Organic Skin Care Citrus & Kale Potent C+E Serum is like a green juice for your skin (really—there's organic kale, spinach, broccoli, lemon, grapefruit, and avocado in the bottle), infusing it with potent plant-derived antioxidants that fight uneven texture and tone. "This combination of vitamins C and E works to boost collagen production while protecting the skin from damaging free radicals," says Dr. Alemi. "The blend of ingredients tone, deeply hydrate and nourish skin, while visibly improving redness, dullness, and signs of aging."
