Company Profile: IBM

Name of Company: IBM (International Business Machines Corporation)

Name of CEO: Virginia “Ginni” M. Rometty

Board:

- Virginia “Ginni” M. Rometty, Chairman, President, and CEO, IBM
- Kenneth I. Chenault, Chairman and CEO, American Express Company
- Michael L. Eskew, Chairman and CEO, United Parcel Service, Inc. (retired)
- David N. Farr, Chairman and CEO, Emerson Electric Co.
- Mark Fields, President and CEO, Ford Motor Company
- Alex Gorsky, Chairman and CEO, Johnson & Johnson
- Shirley Ann Jackson, President, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute
- Andrew N. Liveris, Chairman and CEO, The Dow Chemical Company
- W. James McNerney, Jr., Chairman and CEO, The Boeing Company (retired)
- Hutham S. Olayan, President and CEO, Olayan America, and Principal, Director and Senior Executive, The Olayan Group
- James W. Owens, Chairman and COE, Caterpillar Inc. (retired)
- Sidney Taurel, Chairman, Pearson PLC
- Peter R. Voser, Chairman, ABB Ltd.

Overall Toplines

- Rometty is cultivating close ties and influence in the Trump administration. While IBM the company does not formally espouse any political views, its CEO serves on the Strategic and Policy Forum (“Business Council”) and will also reportedly advise Trump’s new Office of American Innovation.
- IBM already receives billions in government contracts—$1.7 billion since 2008 from Immigration Customs and Enforcement (ICE) and Customs and Border Protection (CBP). IBM could see...

Last updated 4/25/2017
enormous profits from Trump’s ramped up immigration enforcement.

- Rometty is on the Executive Committee of the Business Roundtable, an association of nearly 200 Fortune 500 CEOs that spent $15 million on lobbying in 2016. In a February 2017 letter, the Business Roundtable asked the Trump administration to either repeal or extend “compliance flexibility” on over 20 “regulations of concern” that keep workers safe, protect the environment, and promote transparent business practices.
- In response to Trump’s Muslim ban, over 100 technology companies signed a legal brief speaking out against the ban. IBM did not sign the brief.
- A group of IBM employees have launched a public campaign against their CEO’s collaboration with the Trump administration. Over 2,000 IBM employees have signed a CoWorker.org petition to Rometty.

Connections to Trump

- Rometty is a member of Trump’s Business Council.
  - A few days after the election, she penned a glowing open letter to Trump.
    “Congratulations on your election as the 45th president of the United States. Last Tuesday night you spoke about bringing the country together to build a better future, and the opportunity to harness the creative talent of people for the benefit of all. I know that you are committed to help America’s economy grow in ways that are good for all its

---

5 Senate Office of Public Records data accessed on January 25, 2017 and aggregated by the Center for Responsive Politics, Open Secrets Database: https://www.opensecrets.org/lobby/top.php?showYear=2016&indexType=s

Last updated 4/25/2017
people.”

- Rometty is reportedly an advisor to Trump’s newly created Office of American Innovation, led by Trump’s son-in-law Jared Kushner. According to Rometty: “Jared is reaching out and listening to leaders from across the business community — not just on day-to-day issues, but on long-term challenges like how to train a modern workforce and how to apply the latest innovations to government operations.”
- Rometty has joined off-the-record Trump administration meetings, including a convening of prominent Silicon Valley firms in December. Rometty also attended a private dinner party hosted by Ivanka Trump on women’s financial empowerment in January.

How IBM stands to profit off Trump’s policies

- Since 2008, IBM has received over $7 billion in government contracts. According to the Washington Post, the Office of American Innovation (OAI), which Rometty advises, “could direct that government functions be privatized, or that existing contracts be awarded to new bidders.” It remains to be seen whether Rometty’s role in the OAI will allow her to shore up existing or cultivate new government contracts.
- IBM received over $1.7 billion from Immigration Customs and Enforcement and Customs and Border Protection contracts since 2008. Rometty recently said: “I discussed with the President

---

18 Federal procurement data obtained via USAspending.gov:

Last updated 4/25/2017
and the Secretary of Homeland Security ways that advanced technology could address national security imperatives while also permitting lawful immigration and travel. I explained that this is not an either/or choice.”

Outsized Influence in our Politics

- Rometty is notable in that she has given no political contributions. According to Rometty, “IBM does not espouse a partisan or political point of view. Alone among our major competitors, we do not make political contributions, and we do not endorse candidates for office. We never have.”
- Nonetheless, Rometty is on the Executive Committee of the Business Roundtable, an association of nearly 200 Fortune 500 CEOs that lobbies the government to promote its pro-business interests. The Business Roundtable spent over $15 million on lobbying in 2016.
- In a February 2017 letter to the White House, the Business Roundtable asked the administration to either repeal or extend “compliance flexibility” on over 20 “regulations of concern.” These include regulations that keep workers safe, protect the environment, and promote transparency in business practice.

Last updated 4/25/2017
Quotes and Controversies

- After Trump’s travel ban of people from seven Muslim-majority countries, over 100 technology companies signed a legal brief voicing support for the federal lawsuit against the Executive Order. IBM did not sign the brief.\(^25\)
- In response a group of IBM employee outcry over her collaboration with Trump, Rometty responded: “Some have suggested that we should not engage with the U.S. administration. I disagree. Our experience has taught us that engagement — reaching out, listening and having authentic dialogue — is the best path to good outcomes.”\(^26\)
- A group of IBM employees have launched a public campaign against their CEO’s collaboration with the Trump administration.
  - Over 2,000 IBM employees have signed the CoWorker.org petition. The petition calls on Rometty to “respect our right to refuse participation in any U.S. contracts that violate constitutional and civil liberties,” among other demands.\(^28\)

Recent job cutting/lay-offs

- In 2016 IBM had three rounds of layoffs that affected an undisclosed number of workers, reportedly in the thousands.\(^29\) Amidst declining revenues and worker layoffs, SEC filings show Rometty received a $4.5 million bonus on top of tens of millions in stock options.\(^30\)
- Despite layoffs, since Trump’s election Rometty has publicly announced IBM will be adding jobs

---

Last updated 4/25/2017
in the US. In a December 2016 op-ed, Rometty wrote “we intend to hire about 25,000 professionals in the next four years in the United States, 6,000 of those in 2017. IBM will also invest $1 billion in training and development of our U.S. employees in the next four years.”

According to Bloomberg, “She didn't mention that International Business Machines Corp. was also firing workers and sending many of the jobs overseas.”

---

Last updated 4/25/2017