Study Day

'Jacquard' fabrics without the Jacquard machine

The textile traditions of Varanasi (Benares) and the Indian draw-loom, progenitor of the punch-card and computer-controlled looms.

chair Eva Basile

The focus on the ancient city of Varanasi on the banks of the Ganges, where the finest silk fabrics are manufactured, coalesced during textile expert Eva Basile's recent trip to India, for the Fondazione Lisio, to visit and study the last surviving workshop where velvet is produced on the draw-loom: an ancient and versatile technology.

A study day to learn about Indian textiles, compare them with their European counterparts and understand the evolution that led from the counted-thread techniques to today's most complex digital weaving technologies.

WHEN June, 25th 2018

TIME 9.30-13.00 | 14.00-16.30

WHERE Fondazione Arte della Seta Lisio, via Benedetto Fortini 143, 50125 Firenze

INTENDED FOR Educators and students of textile history, conservators, scholars, weavers, textile experts, designers and enthusiasts.

AT THE END OF THE DAY Certificate of attendance
