

PPF increases shareholding in European e-commerce logistics company InPost

PPF Group ("PPF" or "the Group") has increased its shareholding in InPost, having agreed to acquire additional shares in the pan-European e-commerce distribution company from Advent International ("Advent"). PPF previously acquired a 5% stake in InPost from Advent pursuant to an option agreement dated 25 May 2023. The announcement today of the acquisition of an additional 10% consummates a second call option which replaced the previous option agreement on 7 December 2023. This brings the Group's aggregate InPost stake to approximately 28.75% of its outstanding share capital.

In parallel, PPF and Claire Group have separately agreed that Marcelo Claire's investment firm will purchase a 3% shareholding in InPost from PPF.

"We are proud to increase our shareholding in InPost because it is the leader in providing sustainable solutions for e-commerce in the critical last-mile parcel delivery to customers across Europe. I'm thrilled to welcome Marcelo Claire, a seasoned tech investor, as an InPost shareholder," said Didier Stoessel, Chief Investment Officer of PPF Group.

Outside its home Polish market, the Euronext Amsterdam listed InPost operates in eight European countries, including France and the UK. It manages more than 35,000 automated parcel machines for self-service deliveries by e-commerce clients and individuals. InPost also offers logistics services and fulfillment centers.
