Jennifer Barnes

Southern California plastic surgeon Raffi Hovsepian, M.D., has launched a new Shrink-Wrap Liposuction that should have surgeons and medical spas alike rethinking the traditional fat reduction procedures and opting for minimally invasive sculpting options. Using FDA approved laser technology and minute incisions; this procedure removes and melts stubborn fat, induces collagen retraction, and tightens skin. It effectively targets commonly requested problem areas, such as the waistline, back, chest, arms, thighs, and knees. Patients would be happy to hear they can reap the many benefits of liposculpting with minimal downtime, even returning to work the next day.

Here are more benefits of Hovsepian's innovative procedure:

1. No large incisions
2. No downtime for patients

3. Dramatic results (patients drop three to four clothing sizes in one procedure)
4. Increased safety and comfort for patients
