

Media release

Wednesday, 16 March 2022

RACT's Fuel Saver app helping Tasmanians to save at the bowser

There is no doubt that fuel prices are affecting the cost of living in Tasmania.

While there are no easy solutions, the RACT is urging motorists to download the RACT's free Fuel Saver app.

RACT Chief Advocacy Officer, Garry Bailey, said the Fuel Saver app has up-to-date information on fuel prices right around the State.

"People can vote with their feet before they even leave their driveway," Mr Bailey said.

"Download the app, check the prices in your area and support the service station that is offering the best price."

Mr Bailey said with the invasion of Ukraine causing global instability in the oil market, motorists should expect higher prices to remain over the next few months.

Mr Bailey also urged fuel retailers to update their prices as quickly as possible as required by the Government's real time price reporting regulations.

As at last night the cheapest fuel in Hobart was at Shell Risdon Vale (214.9c for unleaded). The cheapest fuel in Launceston was at United York Park (214.9c for unleaded) and the cheapest fuel in Devonport was at BP Tarleton Street (208.9c for unleaded). These prices are subject to change and motorists are advised to check the Fuel Saver app for updates.