The new Guide for School Plantings is out

Children are the most important citizens to get engaged in climate action, as they are likely to continue supporting reforestation efforts in their adult life, and schools play a crucial role in this process. In order to help schools successfully organise planting events, Life Terra has now created a step-by-step guide for teachers, to give them a reference to use when organising a planting event for their pupils: from the search for a suitable place to the planting itself. If you are a teacher and are considering how to organise a formative and fun experience for your students involving open spaces and trees, look no further! Download the guide here.

How can your company collaborate with Life Terra?

We have plenty of options for your company to start taking impactful climate action. Go green with a sustainable Team Building or surprise them with a unique and climate-friendly present this Christmas. Life Terra can help you make sustainability concrete and tangible for your organisation. Start today!
