

The mainstay treatment for chronic pancreatitis is feeding a highly digestible and low fat diet. This is because it's the pancreas that produces enzymes to breakdown fat. By reducing the fat intake, it reduces the need for the pancreas to work hard to produce these enzymes and therefore decreases the risk of flare ups.

DR ANDREW MILLER MRCVS
Practicing Veterinary Surgeon

We've selected Pure's limited-ingredient recipes which are low-carb, additive free and contain less than 10% fat – paw-fect for managing your pooch's pancreatitis and kicking uncom-fur-table stomach issues to the curb.

You may spot results straight away, but our expert vets recommend an 8-week period before your pet reaps the full rewards of a Pure diet.

BON-A-PET-ITE!