COOKIES INFORMATION

Cookies are used on the website of WOOD & Company Financial Services Ltd. (hereinafter “WOOD LTD”) in accordance with applicable laws.

1 What are cookies?

A cookie is a small data file that a server sends to a browser, which is then stored on the user’s device. During each subsequent visit to the same server, the browser sends this data back to the server. Cookies are commonly used to distinguish individual users, store user preferences, and generally make websites easier to use. Cookies do not pose any danger to the computer as such. However, cookies are important from a privacy perspective. A visited website can store any information it obtains about the visitor in cookies and thus gradually build a profile of the visitor’s interests. Cookies cannot be used to directly identify a visitor. Information collected via cookies may later be used for targeted advertising, statistical analysis of user behavior, etc. Such information can, however, also be obtained without cookies, and therefore their use is not considered particularly dangerous.

Withdrawal and change of consent to the processing of cookies are available in "Cookie Settings" in the footer of the website www.woodandcompany.co.uk.

2 Where do we use cookies?

On the website: https://woodandcompany.co.uk/

3 Why do we use cookies?

In short, cookies are used to ensure optimal delivery of information across the entire website, proper functioning of links, and other functional parts of the website. At the same time, they do not slow down browsing.

4 Necessary cookies

These cookies cannot be disabled in terms of their purpose and processing. They do not require your consent.

4.1 Technical (functional) cookies

These cookies are necessary for the proper functioning of the website. Without them, some features may not work correctly. For example, the website would not remember information you have entered, and you would have to re-enter it repeatedly.

The current list of specific technical cookies is available in the "Cookie Settings" interface from the footer of the website www.woodandcompany.co.uk.

5 Optional cookies

These cookies can be refused, and they require your consent.

5.1 Analytical cookies

Analytical cookies help us continuously improve the website by tracking statistical data, such as total website traffic or the number of clicks on specific elements.

The current list of specific analytical cookies is available in the "Cookie Settings" interface from the footer of the website www.woodandcompany.co.uk.

These cookies are processed by WOOD LTD on the legal basis of user consent, which is valid for 365 days or until withdrawn.

6 Third party overview

Some of the cookies listed above are operated by third parties. More detailed information about the processing of personal data by these entities is available in their policies:

- Google: https://policies.google.com/technologies/cookies