Crops swayed around in the moonlight air. Grey, gloomy clouds started to appear in the sky. A storm was coming. The cold air flew past the village to warn everyone that it was coming. Birds whistled in a melody as they glided above the dark canopy of trees that made Sherwood forest. It was coming!!!

description

Crash! Bang! Boom! The crops fell down to the floor as lightning struck the poor farm. The food that had just been planted ruined, burnt. Their would be no food for a long time. People would starve to death. Everybody knew that the only person who had food now was the Sheriff.

Word

and choice

Robin woke up hungry, the cold morning air whipped past him as each and every one of the Merry Men woke. The crystal clear rain patted gently on the door of their hideout in Sherwood Forest. Despite that, Robin was amazingly starving he still had to do the run of money for the villagers taxes.

Direct

As Robin and his men hid around the grumpy city ready to ambush some rich people, he heard that the crops had been ruined. There was nothing to eat. I need food! Robin concluded. The next night he deiced that he was going to go to the Sheriff's Castle.

At the dead of night, he would go to the castle moat and fire an arrow in to the Sheriff's room. Then climb across the moat by a rope attached to the arrow. Then he'd have to find his way past some guards into the food store, grab as much food as he can. Get out of the castle - Eat!

Word order and choice

Once he got to the castle moat, he tied a rope tightly around the arrow then shot it over to the sheriff's room.

L.O: To write a diary entry.

Dear Diary,

Today was the most terrifying but fun day ever! I can't wait to tell you about it! It was a normal Friday and Dad had just picked me up from Mum's new house, he was in a very good mood and said we could go get some ice cream sodas! Dad sat inside while I went outside to the playground. After a few minutes, I got a bit bored, so I decided to have a little stroll past Mulberry Cottage and have a peek in!

There, Mulberry Cottage was standing right in front of me. Excitedly, I knocked on the door not knowing the dangers that lay ahead of me. I was terrified of the consequences, but then I noticed a rotting smell filling my nose making it tingle. Slowly but gradually I turned around coming face to face with my old mulberry tree! The exotic fruits were turning the ugly, mouldy colours, green and brown. I stuck out my tongue in disgust! My eyes then caught the front door still not opening. "Hello," I said, "Is anyone in there?" I asked. No one replied, I was about to go back to the playground but the door immediately swung open with a fright. She stepped into her house. Even though I was excited to go into my long, lost house, I was also scared!

"Oh my goodness!" I said to myself. There, scattered across the floor were huge mouse droppings! Jumping around were tiny, green cockroaches, I backed away and bumped into the basement door, where Mum stored our fresh mulberries for cooking. There was a gross, grotesque smell coming climbing up the stairs towards me! I ran upstairs to Mum's room and swiftly shut the door behind me. There was Mum's old antique, pink curtains still hanging from the window sill but they were worn out and covered in brown muck. ~~thing~~ I heard the door opening. ~~The~~ The sound of thrashing footsteps echoed around me like thousands of bongo drums. My head was spinning, I didn't know what to do! ~~Then~~ Then everything became clear. I saw the welcoming bed in front of me, I dived under as the bedroom door swung open. A tall, rough man walked in with a petrifying ^(SP) dog, with a spiky collar embraced ^(SP) around its neck. The dog sniffed around, coming closer and closer to the bed.

"Aargh!" I screamed reaching for the rope next to me. I couldn't ^(SP) take it anymore. Gracefully, I lowered myself to the floor, I knew I was in big trouble! ~~At~~ I bolted away from Mulberry Cottage back to the safe, warmth of the playground however I didn't feel right. When I screamed the man didn't turn around, I combined the thoughts then the answer popped in my head. "He was dead!"

I ran to Dad and I told him the whole story, he seemed surprised and angry at first but it sunk in. I asked Dad if we could keep it between ^(SP) us and guess what he said yes! I have to admit Dad, that was the best day of my life! I said to dad. "Well now you're a full trained spy!" he chuckled.

We walked happily back to Corrie's house. I even ate the revolting, green soup she served for dinner!
