"O Friend! The heart is a store of divine mysteries; make it not a receptacle for mortal thoughts; and consume not the capital of this precious life by occupying thyself with the evanescent world. Thou art of the world of holiness; attach not thy heart unto the earth. Thou art a denizen of the court of nearness; choose not an earthly home."

Pitcher, Ger-y-nant, Talybont, Merioneth, at a cost of 12/- per year. London receives one free copy; if anyone would like to be put on the circulation list for this they should apply to the L.S.A. secretary. If all on the list co-operate by passing the magazine on quickly, it will gradually get round to everyone, though it will obviously take some time.
