"O Son of My Handmaid! Guidance hath ever been given by words, and now it is given by deeds. Everyone must show forth deeds that are pure and holy, for words are the property of all alike, whereas deeds such as these belong only to our loved ones. We are asked once again to remind everyone, especially the Persian friends, that they must not sprinkle perfume near the beloved Guardian's Monument. Drops of perfume falling on the marble make nasty stains which it is almost impossible to remove.
