This is a discussion

Even though when I'm standing up here talking to you, sometimes it doesn't really feel like that, but please still take any of this away and talk to people, talk to me, tell me I'm wrong, look on LinkedIn - I've got loads of stuff there, just make contact with someone/anyone, at the least it's a cracking ice breaker, but more than that, find out what drives you, what you care about and why you are going to care about it in the years to come, we can shape the future, I know that sounds super cheesy but it's true.
Let's do this!

Also, ask questions now or message me – if we don't have time to discuss it now I will find time for us to have a chat – I'm tasch btw, nice to meet you

Housebuilder launches first-of-its-kind show home experience in the metaverse

Spitfire Homes has become the first UK homebuilder to launch a show home and customer suite in the metaverse.

Using the latest virtual reality technology, Spitfire has developed a concept that enables customers to experience a fully immersive tour of Spitfire's new house type range, before it has even been built.

Augmented reality

what will it feel like?

Virtual Reality and Alzheimer's Disease - How VR can Help Alzheimer Patient

The healthcare industry has evolved and transformed over the past few years. As opposed to conventional methods, the healthcare industry has employed virtual reality and its diversified applications throughout its various sectors. Its flexibility, a multitude of applications, and accessibility offer premium quality of care which are both effective and speeds up the recovery process to a great extent.

How can we experience virtual events together?
