

Alexander Suchanek

Associate Principal, London

Alexander Suchanek is an Associate Principal based in RBB Economics' London office. Alexander has over seven years of experience working as a competition economist. Over this period, he has advised on a range of competition issues, with a principle focus on Phase II merger investigations raising horizontal, vertical, and conglomerate concerns, in the UK and at the European Union level.

Since joining RBB in 2015, Alexander has had significant experience advising on both Phase I and Phase II merger cases both at the UK and EU level. The EU cases Alexander has worked on include: Halliburton/Baker Hughes, ArcelorMittal/Ilva, Siemens/Alstom, 3M/Scott Safety, Metso/Outotec, GBT/Egencia, Aon/Willis Towers Watson, Viasat/Inmarsat and Broadcom/VMware

UK cases have included: eBay/Adevinta, Heineken/Patron Pubs, MFG/MRH, National Foster Association/Outcomes First Group and BT Sport/Eurosport. Alexander has particular experience and interest in local market assessments, but has wider experience across a range of sectors, including IT infrastructure software, semiconductors, manufacturing industries, internet platforms, the video game sector and fast moving consumer goods.

As well work on merger cases, Alexander also has experience in market investigations and studies. Experience in this area includes assisting the preparation of a report for the Brands for Europe trade association regarding the EU's proposed revisions to the Vertical Block Exemption Regulation (VBER).

Alexander completed his MSc in Economics at University College London and his undergraduate degree in Economics at Durham University.
